

Dunn Gardens Archives

October 20, 2022

The Dunn Gardens is a premier historic destination in King County. It is the only Olmsted Brothers-designed estate garden (1915) regularly open to the public in the region. The seven acre cultural landscape is a Washington State Landmark and is on the National Trust List of Historic Places. The many volunteers who lead tours, serve on the E.B. Dunn Historic Garden Trust Board and its committees, and who undertake special projects in the gardens were presented by First Lady Michelle Obama with the 2016 Volunteer Stewards of Historic Places Award. The archive is a record of this historic cultural landscape and of the enterprise of its conservation and interpretation.

Dunn Gardens Archive Mission Statement:

We collect, preserve, and make accessible documents, images, and other materials pertaining to the history, stewardship, conservation, and interpretation of the Dunn Gardens in order to enhance public access to cultural landscapes.

An Introduction to the use of the archive:

The following is an arrangement scheme or index to the seven collections in the archive. The collections include:

- DT The E.B. Dunn Historic Garden Trust Records,
- EG Edward Dunn House and Garden Records,
- AD Ainsworth & Dunn Records,
- EF Edward Dunn Family Records,
- EP Edward Dunn Papers,
- DI Dunn Gardens Images, and
- EL Edward Dunn Library.

It is based on the finding aid prepared in 1993 with the addition of individual collection descriptions, the post-1993 materials related to the activities of the E.B. Dunn Historic Garden Trust and Color coded catalog labeling to facilitate location and re-filing of archive materials. Each collection contains series and subseries divider/guides and folders that are assigned catalog numbers. For example:

Collection Code	Series	Subseries	Subseries
DT	.01	.01	.01

Three factors affect the access and use of archive materials:

First, the arrangement scheme is a ‘folder level’ index. Individual documents and images are not indexed, but are grouped into series and sub-series folders which are subject labeled and assigned catalog numbers. It is therefore necessary to remove entire folders, and not individual items, from the archive drawers.

Second, in the process of organizing the archive materials, we have retained one copy of each image or document. Therefore, no ‘originals’ are permitted to leave the room, but they will be made available digitally or as photocopies.

Third, the collections came into the archive through different donors and were kept intact as is recognized archival practice. The materials were not then re-organized by topic. It is important, therefore, to search in multiple collections as each contains materials related to the family, garden development, and structures. For example, images of Arthur Dunn Sr. may be found in the various collections depending upon who owned or took the photograph. A subseries of digital images of him from various collections can be found in DI: the Dunn Image collection produced for the Trust. Also, as Edward was executor for his father, he retained a large number of Arthur Sr’s personal and garden-related records that are in collection EF: Edward Dunn Family records. To facilitate searches, we intend to develop a sub-index of Frequently Requested Materials and their archive folder location across the collections.

Using the archive is as easy as reviewing this index to the collections and contacting the archive volunteers at archive@dunngardens.org to arrange to view materials in selected folders. You should include catalog numbers and a brief description and purpose of the inquiry. Specific items may be attached to a reply e-mail to you, additional items may be sent based on your description and purpose statement, and/or a hosted on-site visit may be arranged for deeper exploration. The entire index is available at “www.dunngardens.org” by clicking “About Us” on the navigation bar, then “History and Archive” on the drop down panel, and finally “how to use the Dunn Gardens Archive” in the opening text.

In any publication or presentation, please credit the Dunn Gardens Archive as well as any authors and photographers when known.

The development of the Dunn Gardens Archive is made possible through Trust Board support; a series of grants from 4Culture for equipment, materials, archival services and expertise; our advisory committee of docents, board and family members; and many hours of work by our volunteers.

Administrative/Biographical History Element (2.7)	The records in this collection are Ed Dunn's materials regarding the development of his house and a garden on the parcel (now owned by the E.B. Dunn Historic Garden Trust) that he inherited from his father, Arthur G. Dunn Sr. in 1945. It includes his development of the eastern parcel that was part of the Olmsted Bros. designed site plan and within a portion of the corresponding planting plan. Ed's gardening on this parcel, as well as his work in the horticultural community were aspects lending historic significance cited in its listing by the National

	Trust for Historic Places. It contains receipts for plants purchased, contracts and specs with architects and contractors, garden maintenance, and correspondence with other horticulturalists about plants and gardens. It also contains records (inherited from his father, Arthur G. Dunn) of the planning and construction of the family's Country Place here from 1914-17, including correspondence with and reports from the firms of the Olmsted Bros., Bebb and Gould, and others.

Administrative/Biographical History Element (2.7)	The Ainsworth & Dunn Company operated between 1889 and 1974. Until 1914 as distributors of fresh and canned fish and later as a real estate firm. They built Pier 8 (now 59 and the Seattle Aquarium), Pier 14 (now 70 and a mixed-use structure) a nearby brick warehouse (now the Spaghetti Factory with offices above), and a large cannery in Blaine – all between 1895 and 1904. After retiring from the canning industry in 1914, the year the Dunn Garden’s plan was commissioned and of Ainsworth’s death, Arthur G. Dunn Sr., continued under the partnership name as a real estate firm. The partnership and later the Dunn family descendants retained ownership and accomplished the redevelopment of Pier 14/70 and nearby warehouse until 1978.
